Those in active service with the Church of Scotland, along with many retired ministers, are eligible for Meikle Trust rates – and the Society will offer a bursary to those from other churches who do not qualify. The Society was founded in 1943 by T.F. Torrance and J.K.S Reid, in the belief that the problems faced by the Church in Scotland are at root theological. New people are always welcome at the Society's annual conference which combines theological study and recreation in congenial surroundings.
